

ABSTRACT

A method for representing graphic, wherein the graphic objects are located on a virtual surface field, which is larger than a display field, on which a section of the virtual surface is represented. Graphic objects that are located outside the represented section of the virtual surface field are projected onto the border of the display field.